We have the Skilled Workforce to Grow Your Business

Indiana boasts a skilled workforce with experience in manufacturing between university graduates and current workers. With almost 20% of Hoosiers working in advanced manufacturing (well above the national percentage), companies can draw from a vast talent pipeline.

First-Class Engineering Education

Home to 34,000 engineers and 24 engineering schools, the state boasts the fourth highest concentration of industrial engineers in the country and many of the nation's top aeronautics programs.

We have the Training and Reskilling Opportunities to Grow and Retain your Skilled Workforce

Although Indiana has a skilled advanced manufacturing workforce, automation and new technologies will necessitate reskilling or upskilling – and the state already offers training initiatives like Next Level Jobs, which has, for example, an advanced manufacturing track dedicated to automation and robotics technology.

We Control Business Costs so you can Compete and Win

Financial Benefits

Indiana's corporate income tax rate of 4.9%, mean hourly wage of $23.57 and cost of living index at 95.3 are more competitive than peer states (e.g., California, Illinois, New York), creating more favorable business and living conditions for better company profitability and personal standards of living.

Favorable Tax Environment

A sub-5% corporate income tax rate, no inventory tax and no manufacturing equipment tax contribute to a highly competitive tax situation. These are further bolstered by tax credits for HQ relocation, community revitalization, brownfield redevelopment, data center construction and job creation.

We Offer One of the Best Business Climates in the U.S.

A MESSAGE FROM

Governor Eric J. Holcomb

Chair, IEDC Board of Directors

“For more than a decade, we have worked diligently to build the best business environment in the nation, and we now stand as one of the top five states in the country for doing business. Not only do we have a great business climate, but we have great people. When businesses choose to invest in Indiana, they’re choosing to invest in our people who make our state the best place in America to live, work, play and stay.”
